18 The Mighty Ducks: Behind the Scenes of Disney's Smash Comedy

What's the recipe for a box office smash, one of the most successful family pictures of 1992? Take one arrogant attorney, a down-on-its-luck inner city hockey team, and the rest is history. Of course, Emilio Estevez and the Ducks had to learn how to play hockey. And there was that little matter of filming on location—in Minnesota in the dead of winter. Here's a behind-the-scenes look at the making of The Mighty Ducks.

22 That Wild Rock 'n' Roll

What's the secret of Tom Petty's success? "What keeps you good is to enjoy what you're doing," says Petty. "You can't fool the audience—if you're not enjoying it, the music won't sound good." Petty discusses the highlights of an 18-year career in rock 'n' roll—and his new Disney Channel Going Home music special, a world premiere.

A LETTER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

The morning I watched the Mighty Ducks practice at the Arrowhead Pond in Anaheim was a very special October morning indeed. I was watching the team after their first victory of the season. The night before, they had defeated the Edmonton Oilers in a close game, 4-3. Southern California has an exciting new sports team. I sat back in my seat and was quickly caught up in the rhythm of the scrimmage: the hiss of skates on ice, the clashing and clacking sticks, the peculiar graces and delicacies that come with playing a hard contact sport on ice at hair-raising speeds. It was a great Thursday morning.

Of course, in January you can meet The Disney Channel's own hockey team when we present the world television premiere of Disney's smash comedy The Mighty Ducks. It's a wonderful picture, entertainment your entire family can share together. The Mighty Ducks is just the first in a series of great Disney movies coming your way in 1994. Also on our lineup this year is the world television premiere of the heartwarming adventure Homeward Bound: The Incredible Journey. And in your next issue of The Disney Channel Magazine, I'll be announcing the upcoming world television premiere of a Disney animated classic.

It's the start of an exciting new season for The Disney Channel, a new year that comes complete with a lineup of winners. Oh, yes—we haven't forgotten about entertaining the adults in your family. That's why we're introducing Comedy Tonight, a new evening for adults that features classic comedy. You'll find Comedy Tonight on Thursdays at 9:00 p.m., beginning in January. And don't miss our upcoming concert special Celine Dion: The Color of My Love. Happy New Year!

Disney Facts OUR READERS WANT TO KNOW

If Goofy and Pluto are both dogs, why are they so different?

—A.O., Hillsdale, NJ

Pluto was created by the Disney artists as a dog, a pet, and he possesses all the characteristics of a dog. Goofy on the other hand was created as a human character who just happens to have some of the features of a dog.

Wasn't there a serial on the Mickey Mouse Club in the 1950s about a boy training as an airplane pilot and a girl training as a flight attendant?

—S.V., Highland Village, TX

A serial called "What I Want To Be" began on the very first Mickey Mouse Club Show on October 3, 1955, and ran for 10 episodes. It was filmed at the TWA headquarters in Kansas City and depicted the special training procedures for becoming an airline pilot and flight attendant.

While Disney publications give June 9th as Donald Duck's birthday, both The Three Caballeros and Donald's Happy Birthday show Friday the 13th as his birthday. Which date is correct?

—K.N., Rockledge, PA

Since several dates had been used for Donald Duck's birthday in the past, we decided to make Donald consistent with Mickey Mouse. For Mickey's birthday, we use the release date for his first cartoon, Steamboat Willie, so for Donald's birthday we now use June 9, the release date of The Wise

Little Hen, in which Donald made his first appearance.

Uncle Scrooge is my favorite character; when did he make his first appearance?

—M.V., Glendale, CA

Donald Duck's wealthy uncle Scrooge McDuck was created by artist Carl Barks for a Donald Duck comic book story in 1947 called "Christmas on Bear Mountain." Before long, Scrooge had his own comic book series. He made his film debut in the featurette Scrooge McDuck and Money in 1967 and more recently had the lead in Mickey's Christmas Carol (1983).

Looking Back

DISNEYANA: FANTASIA'S FANTASTIC FIGURINES

When Walt Disney's classic Fantasia was released in 1940, merchandisers were not quick to jump on the bandwagon, as they had done with Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs and Pinocchio. Fantasia did not have the same type of characters as its predecessors, characters which could easily be used for toys and games. One company, a pottery manufacturer in a Los Angeles suburb, did come forward with a proposal for Fantasia-themed items. Vernon Kilns received the license and began production on sets of Fantasia dinnerware. Eight different patterns were produced with such names as Enchantment, Nutcracker, Flower Ballet, and Fairyland. Vernon Kilns also created eight styles of vases and bowls, in solid colors and hand-decorated versions. But most interesting to collectors of Disneyana are the Fantasia figurines. Thirty-six different figurines were made—satyrs, centaurettes, unicorns, hippos, sprites, ostriches,—even mushroom salt and pepper shakers. Each figurine has a number impressed in the bottom of the base. In the Walt Disney Archives we are lucky to have assembled 35 of the 36 figurines; we are still searching for number 16, a donkey unicorn.

Disney Night Time A REEL FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Following the establishment of the United States, the first great tide of immigration to reach America's shores came from Ireland. Political oppression and then famine sent the Irish fleeing to the new world. At first Irish immigration led to social upheaval and intolerance—"No Irish Need Apply"—in their new homeland. But Irish culture was to make lasting contributions to America's developing society.

In honor of, St. Patrick's Day, Disney Night Time will present the world premiere of Irish Music & America: A Musical Migration. Hosted by Emmy Lou Harris, the special examines the influence of Irish music on American popular music, ranging from folk music to blue grass, country & western, rock 'n' roll, even the western ballads of the cowboys. The show features performances by a list of stellar guests, including Bono of U2, Ricky Skaggs, The Everly Brothers, The Clancy Brothers, Richard Thomas, Elvis Costello, Christy Moore, Hothouse Flowers, and John Prine.

Beginning in January COMEDY TONIGHT

Beginning Thursday, January 6, Disney Night Time presents a new evening of entertainment, Comedy Tonight, which features great specials and classic movies. In January Comedy Tonight presents Martin & Lewis: Their Golden Age of Comedy, a five-part look at the career of the great comedy duo. In fact, the last two installments of this great documentary are world premieres, successors to the acclaimed three-part series that aired last year on the Channel. Upcoming highlights on Comedy Tonight include specials on W.C. Fields and Jackie Gleason, plus classic comedy film festivals.

Best of Hollywood MASTER OF SUSPENSE

In March, The Best of Hollywood presents a salute to Hollywood's greatest master of suspense, Alfred Hitchcock. The program includes four classic films—Suspicion, Saboteur, Shadow of a Doubt, and Foreign Correspondent—as well as a documentary on Sunday Night Showcase, Alfred Hitchcock: Just One Hitch. It's the real McGuffin.

Sunday Night Showcase

CELINE DION: THE COLOR OF MY LOVE

"I always felt that if I just kept singing, everything would turn out well," says Canadian chanteuse and superstar Celine Dion. "And of course it has." Disney Channel subscribers will meet Celine Dion in February when Sunday Night Showcase presents the U.S. premiere of Celine Dion: The Color of My Love. Shot in the city of Quebec, the special features a concert at the Capitole Theatre. The songs include "The Color of My Love," "Beauty and the Beast," "When I Fall in Love," "The Power of Love," and other great love songs and ballads.

"When I'm singing," says Celine Dion, "every sense in my body tingles. I feel as though I have no limits... that anything and everything is possible."

Entertaining PERFECT HOLIDAY PARTIES

Party-animal versus party-pooper: sometimes we wage a mental tug-of-war between wanting to throw a party and preferring to cuddle up by the fire with a good book. And the holidays can add stress to throwing a party. Parents sometimes also wrestle with the question of how to throw a successful party when the guests would range from young children to singles and seniors.

It doesn't have to be hard, says Desmond Atholl, author of Desmond's Guide to Perfect Entertaining (St. Martin's Press, 1993, $18.95). "Too many people are intimidated about having parties. Just have the kind of party you are comfortable with, and don't party to impress."

When the guest list includes children, the trick is to see the event as two separate parties, not just one. The idea shouldn't be to segregate the kids, Atholl says, but rather to ensure that the children have the fun and the stimulation they need.

Sometimes just having one of the older children lead the younger ones in a holiday craft project on a newspaper-covered table in the playroom or den during the hors d'oeuvres hour can be fun. Older kids may enjoy taking instant photos of the guests and gluing the snapshots to paper to serve as visual place cards.

Atholl also likes the idea of creating a children's dinner table, suitable to the size of the smaller guests and decorated with an eye to what intrigues children. Even plain white paper can serve as a tablecloth, as long as a basket of crayons is provided so that the children can draw.

Atholl also encourages families to involve the children in the pre-party planning, including designing glittery pine-cone centerpieces, invitations, or other decorations. They can help select and wrap little dime-store gifts to put at each guest's place—a special touch Atholl finds everyone appreciates.

For simplicity and easy cleanup, Atholl encourages party-givers to feel comfortable using plastic glasses and paper goods. For a group larger than eight, Atholl finds only a buffet meal is workable. But he warns that it is crucial to set the buffet up logically, with plates and silverware first, and the cranberry sauce next to the turkey.

Especially for parents managing the hectic pace of family life, Atholl recommends that much of the food preparation and decorating should be done before the day of the event. He also encourages party-givers to be sure every member of the family has a pre-determined role.

While Atholl doesn't promise that party-givers won't be a bit tired as they wave good-bye to the last-to-leave guests, he does say that the memories of holiday parties will be long-lasting. What is important is to seize the opportunity to create a special celebration this season. "Just do the best you can do...and have fun."

Good for You A COUGH SYRUP PRIMER

Shopping for cough medicine today can be daunting. There is a bewildering variety of over-the-counter options. And the differences between the various one- or two-letter labels are hard to decipher. How do you choose between a DM and a PE?

There is no universal code for the initials printed on cough syrup packages. Every manufacturer uses different letters to identify products designed to attack different sets of symptoms. Most cough medications are made up of a syrupy base to which various active ingredients and flavorings are added. Many products combine a wide combination of ingredients that promise to cure everything from a stuffy

COLORFUL CALENDARS

There's nothing like a yearful of blank squares in a brand new calendar to suggest infinite possibilities and great potential. This year's calendars promise even more: art, entertainment and inspiration. Above are a few of the most interesting: Dinosaurs (New Seasons Publishing, $6.99); Dolls (Workman Publishing, $8.95); Americana—a collection of paintings by Charles Wysocki (AMCAL, $11.95); American Wildflowers, inspired by Lady Bird Johnson's book Wildflowers Across America, (Abbeville Publishing Group, $10.95); and The Art of Mickey Mouse (Hyperion, $9.95).

nose to a fever—as well as the cough itself.

Rebecca Wheeler Chater, a Fayetteville, North Carolina, pharmacist who specializes in children's medication, says the first step in shopping for cough remedies is to clarify the person's symptoms. "A cough is not just a cough," Chater says.

Parents should determine whether the cough is dry or productive (which means the child may cough up mucous or the chest may sound wet or crackly). A parent should also assess whether the child has a fever, a stuffy nose, or symptoms of a cold.

"The goal should be to pick a medication that treats just the specific symptoms—and no more," says Chater. It's too easy to accidentally give a double dose of an ingredient by first offering a child a multi-symptom cough syrup, for example, and then giving some Tylenol for a fever. The cough syrup may have included acetaminophen.

For a dry cough, choose a medication that offers just a cough suppressant, such as dextromethorphan. These remedies are usually marketed with simply the product name, and no accompanying letters. If there is a suspicion that there may be some underlying, quiet congestion in the chest, or if the cough is clearly productive, Chater recommends opting for a product with both a cough suppressant and an expectorant, typically dextromethorphan and guaifenesin. The expectorant will help loosen the congestion.

When a child has cold or flu symptoms with a cough, Chater offers a few warnings. She suggests that parents avoid any product containing an antihistamine (such as chlorpheniramine) if the child has chest congestion; the ingredient may actually thicken the congestion. When a product label promises decongestion, Chater suggests parents take a closer look. "Is it chest congestion the product promises to clear

GREAT KIDS CAMERAS

Single-use quick snaps make great cameras for young kids—and today they come with a wide range of features, such as a built-in flash. There are even panoramic models that produce 10-inch wide prints, water-proof models, and models complete with a telephoto lens. Below: Kodak also offers special albums ($9.99 each) that help kids use their photos to tell a story about themselves, their families, or a special event. "Albums are a good vehicle for extending the expression of children's thoughts," says Kodak's Dodge McFall.

up, or nasal congestion? Be sure to match the label to the symptoms."

If parents have questions about which cough syrup to choose, Chater encourages them to ask the pharmacist, who can explain the ingredients and help find the right product for the situation. She also suggests families get a dosing device—a well-labeled teaspoon-like measuring tool—that will ensure that the right amount of medication is given. "Using a teaspoon from the silverware drawer is a prescription for over- or under-medicating."

Together PHOTOGRAPHY THROUGH CHILDREN'S EYES

Cameras can be fascinating to children.

But at what age does a child have the coordination to hold the camera still, center a subject in the viewfinder, and gently squeeze the shutter? According to Dodge McFall, a manager for Eastman Kodak Company in Rochester, New York, six to eight is typically the right time to start a child out with photography.

While about 50 percent of children six years old and older own a camera, and 25 percent more have access to one, parents may not encourage children to take pictures. If the photos don't turn out well, parents can easily get so tired of the cost of film and processing that they may even start to hide the camera from the child, McFall says.

The new single-use cameras offer a good way to slowly gauge a child's potential interest in photography, McFall says. At about $10, they are easy to use and come pre-loaded with film. If a child should lose a single-use camera, it is far less of a catastrophe than if a more expensive camera has been misplaced. And special-application single-use cameras are available, such as panoramic (great to shoot the whole soccer team), water-proof (good for skiing, ice skating, shooting in the rain or even underwater), and telephoto models.

But sometime around the age of six to eight—depending on interest and dexterity—kids are ready for a somewhat more sophisticated camera, says McFall. Given what kids are doing with other forms of technology, such as personal computers, experts today encourage parents not to underestimate their children's ability to handle a camera effectively.

The trick is to find a camera that is not so big that it's hard for little children to hold and handle, and not so sophisticated that basics like film-loading and focusing are off-putting. Yet children do tend to like cameras that look as much like the parents' model as possible, says McFall, and manufacturers have responded to this demand by creating simple cameras that look a lot like the more complex models.

For children who are ready for something more than a single-use camera, there is a wide range of $25 to $75 110-cartridge and 35-mm cameras that offer easy-to-use features such as auto-focus, drop-in film cartridge loading, and automatic film advance.

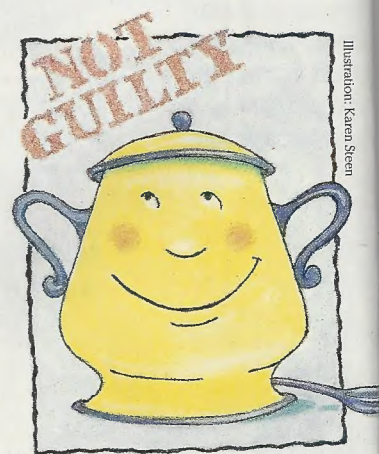

While parents can easily fall into the habit of shooting just big events, McFall says kids are the champions of candid photography. "They tend to negatively react to posing, and they love to capture the fun, silly—and sometimes embarrassing—antics of daily life." They become family historians.

Photography experts recommend that parents help children categorize, organize, and preserve their pictures in albums. "Once kids have albumed their photos, they get a lot more enjoyment out of them, and albums are a good vehicle for extending the expression of the children's thoughts," says McFall. In addition to generic albums, there are now others that help a child chronicle family life, a party, or a vacation—with room to write thoughts and impressions.

For a free 48-page booklet "Hot Shots with Any Camera," which reviews all the basics of photography, call the Kodak Information Center, (800) 242-2424.

Health & Fitness THE SCOOP ON SUGAR

Sugar has gotten a bad rap.

So says registered dietician Jodie Shield, a spokesperson for the American Dietetic Association (ADA) in Chicago. Shield thinks parents should lighten up about sugar because the real culprit is fat.

FAMILY GAMES

Two family games were recently rated favorites by Consumer Reports: "Knock Out," by Milton Bradley ($20), requires players to take turns using a battery-powered hammer-like tool to knock out clear plastic blocks from a tottering wall...until a special Knockout brick falls; "Laser Pinball" (pictured above), by Tiger Electronics ($50), uses high-tech sound effects and a glowing puck to make pinball very 21st century.

"A teaspoon of sugar has 16 calories, but the same amount of margarine has 45 to 50," says Shield. "Fat is the number one issue, not sugar."

The National Cholesterol Education Program (NCEP) recommends that children consume no more than 30 percent of their total calories as fat, or about 66 grams of fat for an active school-aged child, according to Shield.

But what about all the sugar-related concerns parents have? Does sugar make children wilder and more excitable? No, says Shield. "There are no scientific studies that show kids are hyper after ingesting sugar." Any crazy behavior is probably due to the party atmosphere that typically goes with cupcakes and sodas.

Doesn't sugar cause cavities?

Actually, Shield says sugar is a carbohydrate, and other offenders—like crackers and bread—are just as likely to contribute to cavity formation.

"I don't think kids should be policed away from sugar," Shield says. But she does recommend that parents concentrate on providing a balanced diet, rich in the various food groups, and as low in fat as possible. "The key is to be sure that sugar is not replacing necessary nutrients," Shield says.

Yet a soft drink can contain between nine and 12 teaspoons of sugar, a lot more worrisome than some cookies. "What's problematic is not the sugar itself," Shield adds, "but the high number of sugar-only calories a child can get by drinking a few glasses of soft drinks a day."

As for sugar substitutes, according to the Federal Drug Administration (FDA), aspartame (marketed as Equal and NutraSweet) and saccharin are safe in moderation. The FDA says an acceptable daily intake of aspartame is 50 mg per kg of body weight, or the equivalent of seven cans of soda for a 50-pound child.

But Shield questions why a parent would be offering children—unless they are diabetic—an artificial sweetener. "If a child is consuming diet pop instead of milk, something's wrong," she says. "Baby boomers are part of a generation that has grown up dieting and focusing more on cutting calories than on building a healthy diet."

The ADA offers a free brochure on sugar, available by calling the National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics, at (800) 366-1655.

KidsCooking STAR-STRUCK SUGAR COOKIES

Take a great sugar cookie recipe and a simple star cookie cutter and you can have more than a delicious dessert: you can decorate the house for the holidays.

The trick is to use a clean, never-sharpened pencil to make a small hole in the top of each cookie just before the batch is baked. Then the star cookies can be decorated as you wish—with sugar or icing. Use colorful ribbons to hang the star cookies from banisters, doorknobs, chandeliers, wreaths and trees, or tie several together to make a garland to hang over the fireplace.

No matter how you choose to decorate, be sure to save at least a handful of cookies just to eat!

STAR SUGAR COOKIES

- 4 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 pound (2 sticks) unsalted butter
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

1. Sift dry ingredients together.
2. Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs and beat well.
3. Add dry ingredients, one cup at a time, alternating with milk and vanilla, beating well after each addition.
4. Wrap and chill dough for at least one hour.
5. Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Butter baking sheets.
6. Divide the dough into four pieces. Roll one piece at a time on a floured board and cut with large star-shaped cookie cutters.
7. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes. Watch carefully; don't let them brown. Cool on racks.
8. Sprinkle with colored sugar or icing.

ICING

- 1 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1 egg white
- 1 to 2 drops of lemon juice

1. Mix icing ingredients until smooth, and spread on cooled cookies.
2. You can divide the icing between four or five bowls and use food coloring to get a selection of colored icings.

WE INVENTED
A THERMOMETER THAT WORKS WITHIN THE ATTENTION SPAN
OF THE AVERAGE
FIVE-YEAR-OLD.
(ONE SECOND.)

Finally, somebody's done something about the three-minute ordeal known as taking a temperature on a squirming kid. We've reduced it to one easy second. With the Thermoscan Instant Thermometer.

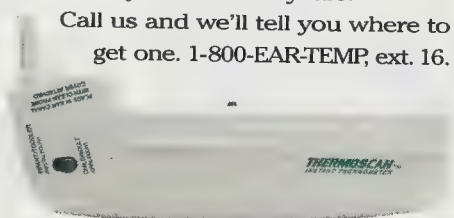

It takes a temperature at the ear (recognized as a very accurate way to take a temperature).

You just press a button. It's accurate. It's easy to read. You can even take a temperature while your child's asleep.

No more glass tubes to shake, no more worry about broken glass and virtually no fear of spreading germs.

It works in just a second. And it's designed to keep working—whenever your family needs it—for years.

Call us and we'll tell you where to get one. 1-800-EAR-TEMP, ext. 16.

THE MIGHTY DUCKS

BEHIND THE SCENES OF DISNEY'S SMASH COMEDY

OK, here's your mission...

You are going to pick a script you think is a winner—one the public will love and feel heartened by. You've read hundreds and hundreds of possible contenders, and finally found the one you believe in. Great! Now make what's on paper come to rip-roaring life. In a matter of months. And on budget. Think you can do it? Well then, you can be a producer. Sort of. Award-winning producers Jon Avnet and Jordan Kerner (Fried Green Tomatoes, Risky Business, The Burning Bed) felt they had found the family film they'd been wanting to make when they read Stephen Brill's The Mighty Ducks. It was a poignant comedy about the life lessons an aggressive "win-at-any-cost" trial lawyer named Gordon Bombay learns from the crew of pint-size hockey misfits he's assigned by the courts to coach, and Kerner felt the story would appeal to adults as much as to kids and teens.

The pair brought on board director Stephen Herek of Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure fame; cast Emilio Estevez in the lead role because, as Herek says, "Emilio has a great quality which makes Gordon redeemable even when he seems unredeemable," and got ready to make their film.

That's where the "sort of" comes in. Movie making is the frustrating, exhilarating, passionate experience it is because no matter how much you prepare, anything can, and very often does, happen. Experienced producers like Avnet and Kerner try to mitigate this "law of unpredictability" by planning everything—right down to the smallest detail.

Take the location where The Mighty Ducks was to be shot. In the script, the story is set in Minnesota, yet, says Kerner, "we scouted locations in Pittsburgh, Chicago, Boston, Toronto and Vancouver." Oddly enough, with all that shopping around, Minneapolis, with its 52 indoor ice rinks, 60 outdoor rinks, thousands of peewee hockey teams, and highly skilled pool of professional crew to draw from, ended up being Kerner and Avnet's number one choice for location shooting.

And Minneapolis had another plus. Minnesota being the heart of peewee hockey country, finding kids to play on the opposing teams in the movie proved no problem. But finding kids >

*Kerner and Avnet ended up with a crew of kids who,
like the ones
in the movie,
couldn't skate,
couldn't score,
and couldn't

who could skate and act did. Feeling it was more important for the kids who made up the movie's Ducks to be professional actors than to be good skaters, Kerner and Avnet ended up with a crew of kids who, like the ones in the movie, couldn't skate, couldn't score, and, half of them never even having seen a hockey game, couldn't possibly win.

So, you want to be a producer? What now? Hey, this one's easy. Organize a hockey camp. Six weeks before the start of principal photography, the kids playing the Ducks arrived in Minneapolis so they could spend three hours a day on the ice. They practiced coordination skills, skating drills, and scrimmaging. On the fourth week they were joined by, you guessed it, Emilio Estevez. He didn't know anything about hockey, either.

At the same time, across town, the production designer, Randy Ser, was busy pinning down 22 separate locations for shooting and building three sets in warehouses. Sounds straightforward enough except that this is Minneapolis in winter. As the art department painted exteriors, their brushes froze to the buildings; their paint brushes had to be thawed every 20 minutes.

But finally shooting began. Things were going pretty well except for the day director Herek shot during an actual Northstars hockey game at Minneapolis's Met Center. The game was in progress; the actors were in place; but so were thousands of screaming Northstar fans. The space was so tight, handheld cameras had to be used, and there was no way to control crowd reaction or noise. "It was like filming a documentary," says Herek.

And then there was that magical moment when the Ducks got to meet "real" hockey pros, in this case the Northstars' Michael Modano and Basil McRae. Only problem this time—the National Hockey League players had voted to go out on strike on the very day the scene was scheduled to be shot. Modano and McRae had to be off the ice by the time the strike vote was announced or face stiff penalties and very unhappy teammates.

If, by this time, you are rethinking becoming a producer, console yourself with this thought. No matter how unpredictable filmmaking can be, weather, in Minneapolis in winter, is always the same. Every year, for millennia now, the only adjective to describe it is "cold." "Freezing" simply won't do—it's usually way below freezing. Except the year The Mighty Ducks was filmed outside. Suddenly it was unseasonably warm. Which is why the Ice Palace at Saint Paul's Winter Carnival began to melt and had to be destroyed. This might have been okay, except that it was a chosen location for the film, the centerpiece of a wonderful winter carnival scene.

Here's where you find out if you truly have what it takes to be a producer. Avnet and Kerner responded to this possible calamity the way any producer would. They had their production designer create a winter carnival on the spot, complete with ice sculptures, snow, and horses with sleighs. They brought to the film that magic ingredient every producer has to have—Lady Luck. Remember, Avnet and Kerner had chosen to shoot their movie in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Where else in the world would hundreds of hearty and good-natured extras stand out in the cold—for hours—just so you can shoot the carnival scene to your smash movie, right?

SHELLEY DUVALL'S FAERIE TALE THEATRE

© Ron Davis/SHOOTING STAR

THE IDEA FOR HER STAR-STUDDED SERIES FAERIE TALE THEATRE CAME TO SHELLEY DUVALL IN 1980, WHEN SHE AND ROBIN WILLIAMS WERE ON LOCATION IN MALTA FOR ROBERT ALTMAN'S FILM "POPEYE." "I HAD BROUGHT SOME ANTIQUE BOOKS ALONG TO READ IN MY SPARE TIME," MS. DUVALL RECALLS. "ONE OF THOSE BOOKS WAS A COLLECTION OF 'GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES.' ONE DAY, WHILE I WAS READING 'THE FROG PRINCE,' IT OCCURRED TO ME THAT ROBIN WOULD MAKE A TERRIFIC FROG, AND THAT IT WOULD BE WONDERFUL TO SEE THOSE TALES BROUGHT TO LIFE. I ASKED ROBIN WHAT HE THOUGHT OF CREATING A SERIES OF CLASSIC FAIRY TALES AND...HOW HE FELT ABOUT FROGS. HE LAUGHED, THOUGHT IT WAS A GREAT IDEA—AND SUGGESTED THAT I SHOULD PRODUCE THE SHOWS MYSELF. THUS WAS THE BIRTH OF FAERIE TALE THEATRE. BUT MY DREAM WOULD NEVER HAVE BEEN REALIZED WITHOUT A 'LITTLE HELP FROM MY FRIENDS.'" AND WHAT FRIENDS—SOME OF THE FINEST ACTORS AND DIRECTORS IN HOLLYWOOD!

FAERIE TALE THEATRE

Mondays at 7:00 p.m.; encores Saturday at 6:00 p.m. (All times ET/PT)
Beginning Monday, January 3

THE ART OF

Mickey

♥ On the left, this animator's rough drawing, the first step in the animation process, illustrates how Mickey first looked on the drawing board in the 1942 animated short "Mickey's Birthday Party."

♥ In the center is a clean-up drawing, which is the animator's final drawing, and represents the next step in the animation process.

♥ The last step is to transfer the clean-up drawing to an acetate cel and hand-paint it, creating this finished character painting, which represents 1/24 of a second of animation.

Since his first appearance on November 18, 1928, Mickey has captivated audiences with his optimism and simple uncomplicated outlook on life.

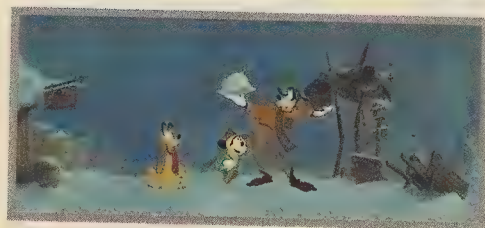

This Disney artist meticulously distributes the paint with light, quick, accurate strokes onto an acetate cel.

In celebration of Mickey's birthday, Disney Art Editions has published two new limited edition cels, as well as released original Mickey Mouse production art.

"La Conga" 11 3/8" x 23"

In celebration of Mickey's birthday, Disney artists working from original clean-up drawings hand-painted this limited edition of 500 cels from the 1942 animated short "Mickey's Birthday Party."

"The Prince and The Pauper" 12" x 16"

Mickey, Pluto and Goofy frolic in the snow in this one-of-a-kind hand-painted original cel used in the 1990 production of The Prince and the Pauper.

"Mickey Through the Years" 15 1/4" x 27 1/4"

This commemorative edition of 5000 sericels, reproduced through a fine art screen printing process, follows Mickey through the years.

Animation art captures priceless moments, the fleeting 1/24 of a second, freezing the individual image for a lifetime of enjoyment. Disney Art Editions publishes animation art which embodies all of the emotion of a magical Disney moment from classic animated films and shorts to today's animated features and television programs.

Join the birthday celebration... the Art of Mickey can be found at Preferred Galleries, The Disney Store and Disney Theme Parks worldwide.

American Legacy

THE INCREDIBLE VOYAGE OF BILL PINKNEY

ON JUNE 9, 1992, WILLIAM PINKNEY REALIZED A DECADES OLD DREAM: HE SAILED INTO BOSTON HARBOR AFTER A 22-MONTH VOYAGE OF 27,000 MILES. BILL PINKNEY HAD JUST COMPLETED A SOLO CIRCUMNAVIGATION OF THE GLOBE. PINKNEY'S 47-FOOT CUTTER WAS NAMED THE "COMMITMENT"—A FITTING NAME, GIVEN THAT BILL PINKNEY HAD FIRST THOUGHT OF SAILING AROUND THE WORLD AS A YOUNG AFRICAN-AMERICAN GROWING UP IN POVERTY ON CHICAGO'S SOUTH SIDE. BILL PINKNEY KNEW ALL ABOUT COMMITMENT—AND IN THE COURSE OF HIS VOYAGE, THOUSANDS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN IN CHICAGO AND BOSTON LEARNED ABOUT COMMITMENT, TOO, AS THEY FOLLOWED PINKNEY'S COURSE VIA SATELLITE AND TALKED TO HIM ON RADIO. ON JANUARY 11, THE DISNEY CHANNEL IS PROUD TO PRESENT THE WORLD TELEVISION PREMIERE OF THE INCREDIBLE VOYAGE OF BILL PINKNEY. NARRATED BY BILL COSBY, THIS INSPIRATIONAL SPECIAL IS NOT JUST THE CHRONICLE OF ONE MAN'S PHYSICAL JOURNEY BUT ALSO A CELEBRATION OF THE HUMAN HEART AND SPIRIT.

A World Television Premiere on The American Legacy
January 11 at 9:00 p.m. (ET/PT)

Meet 101 lovable watch dogs...
a Bradford Exchange recommendation

A new collector's plate from the Bradford
Exchange

BRADEx™
84-B10-64.1

NUMBER

This number, fired on the back, certifies that your plate is officially listed for trading on the Bradford Exchange.

When their favorite TV show comes on, it doesn't take a sharp command to get these adorable dogs to sit up and take notice. Even the youngsters are all eyes, all ears—and all spots!

Now you can recall the enchantment of Walt Disney's 101 Dalmatians with a fine porcelain collector's plate from the Bradford Exchange inspired by this animated classic. And like exceptional collector's plates that command hundreds of dollars on the plate market, the "Watch Dogs" plate appears to have what it takes to go up in value once the edition closes.

Some exceptional plates appreciate in value;
some plates go down, and many remain at or near issue price. But the edition of the "Watch Dogs" plate is strictly limited to a maximum of 95 firing days, and demand is expected to be strong. So if you wish to obtain this plate at the $29.90 issue price, the time to act is now. To order your plate—fully backed by our unconditional 365-day guarantee—send no money now, simply complete and mail the coupon.

Your Bradford Exchange Advantages:

- A hand-numbered limited-edition plate with a corresponding hand-numbered Certificate of Authenticity
- A complete plate story detailing the significance of this recommendation
- The potential for appreciation—
like 1990's "Pinocchio and the Blue Fairy," which last traded on the Bradford Exchange at $99.00,**
331% of its $29.90 issue price
- An unconditional 365-day guarantee allowing you to return your plate for a full refund of everything you have paid—including postage

"Snowy Adventure"
shown actual size:
3 1/4-inch diameter.
Pure porcelain.

A new $16.60
limited-edition
miniature plate by Donald Zolan

Buy one, get one free

"Snowy Adventure" is the new winter plate by Donald Zolan, America's favorite living plate artist.

The art shows a little girl out in the snow. Her twinkling eyes and sunny smile light up the wintry scene. Zolan fills her expression with joy, wonder, surprise and even a little mischief.

This new $16.60 miniature has bright prospects because Zolan's miniatures have risen faster in value than any other group of collector's plates since plate collecting began almost 100 years ago. All the first ten have gone up over five times in retail value and one exceptional plate has gone up over 63 times, from $12.50 to $810.

Right now you can buy one at the issue price of $16.60 and get one free.

Each "Snowy Adventure" plate will come with a gift box, display stand, certificate of authenticity and art story by Zolan. Full one-year return privileges. 19-day firing schedule. Available now from Pemberton & Oakes, Zolan's home gallery.

Inside MMC—Info You Wanna Know

SUBJECT:

BOYZ 'N' GIRLZ

JOSH: "I like girls who are kinda different, who like me for what I am. I'm not seeing anyone special right now...but I got my new car, and..."

NITA: "I'm kinda laid back right now."

JC: "Girls? Yes, definitely!! With exotic looks, dark hair, and mysterious eyes!"

JENNIFER: "I try to just let relationships happen, otherwise I'll just worry about it. When the right time comes along, it'll happen."

TONY: "I'm trying to play it cool. I like girls who are secure and don't have to have your attention all the time."

ILANA: (Laughing) "There are some very cute guys out there!"

DALE: "Girls—you gotta love 'em! I'm taking my time right now, though."

KERI: "I just like to keep things simple and have a good time wherever I am."

RICKY: "I've been dating but I don't have a serious relationship...yet!!"

NIKKI: "Boys? Yeah, they're cute. There's nobody special in my life right now, but whoever he is, he's gotta like sports—a lot!"
